Siena College Poll:

Obama Poised to Carry New York; Comparable to '08

Gillibrand Appears Headed Toward Overwhelming Victory

Small Plurality of Voters Now Support Hydrofracking

Majority Wants Dems to Control State Senate; 63 Elections Determine Outcome

Loudonville, NY. Headed toward Election Day, President Obama continues to have a large lead over Mitt Romney, 59-35 percent, closely resembling 2008, when he carried the state by a 63-36 percent margin. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand, seeking her first full six-year term, has a commanding 67-24 percent lead over Republican challenger Wendy Long, according to a new Siena College Research Institute poll of likely voters released today.

By a small plurality, 42-36 percent, voters support the Department of Environmental Conservation allowing hydrofracking to move forward in parts of upstate New York. A plurality of voters say they are prepared to re-elect their incumbent state senator, and a majority of voters, including independents by a 15-point margin, say they would like to see the State Senate controlled by the Democrats. Governor Andrew Cuomo continues to enjoy strong favorability and job performance ratings from New York voters.

“The last time a Republican presidential candidate carried New York was 1984 and that streak of 28 years appears to be in no jeopardy this year. Despite the tightness of the race nationally, President Obama is poised to win New York big, with a similar margin to his 2008 victory in the Empire State,” said Siena pollster Steven Greenberg. “While Romney has shored up his base of Republican voters – now matching the support Obama enjoys among Democrats – independent voters have moved even stronger than previously into the President’s camp, by a 25-point margin, up from eight points in August. Obama’s lead is largest in New York City but he leads in the downstate suburbs and upstate too. He has a narrow 49-45 percent lead among white voters and an overwhelming lead among minority voters, including a 97-0 percent lead with black voters.”

Obama has a 61-37 percent favorability rating (down a little from 64-35 percent in August) and Romney has a negative 41-55 percent favorability rating (up from 34-61 percent in August). Fifty-eight percent of voters are prepared to re-elect Obama and 38 percent would prefer ‘someone else’ (virtually unchanged from 59-37 percent in August). Obama’s job performance rating is unchanged at 53-47 percent.

Gillibrand on Verge of Blowout Win, Larger than Her Big 2010 Victory

Kirsten Gillibrand has a 56-22 percent favorability rating (up from 50-26 percent in August) and by a margin of 58-28 percent, likely voters are prepared to re-elect her rather than support ‘someone else’ (up slightly from 56-28 percent in August). Wendy Long’s favorability rating is 17-16 percent (11-12 percent in August).

“Gillibrand won her election two years ago by a 63-35 percent margin, a decisive win. This year she appears headed to an even larger victory as she currently holds a 67-24 percent lead over Long,” Greenberg said.

“Gillibrand has the support of 86 percent of Democrats, she has a three-to-one lead among independent voters, and she even gets 33 percent support among Republicans, compared to Long’s 56 percent.”

By a Narrow Margin, a Plurality of Voters Now Supports Hydrofracking

Sixty-six percent of likely voters say they have heard or read at least some about DEC’s expected decision on hydrofracking, up slightly from 63 percent in August. Currently, 42 percent of voters support DEC allowing hydrofracking to move forward in New York and 36 percent oppose it (it was 39-38 percent in August).

“While it’s not a groundswell of support, more voters now support DEC moving forward on hydrofracking than in any previous Siena poll. In August, a plurality of upstate voters and women had opposed fracking, and now small pluralities of both are in support,” Greenberg said. “Democrats in opposition and independents in support are more closely divided than are Republicans, who overwhelmingly support fracking by a 60-23 percent margin.”

Majority Wants Democratic Control of State Senate; Actual Outcome Determined District by District

“By a 55-36 percent margin, voters would like to see the Democrats in the majority in the State Senate, however, that’s not a vote that voters get to cast on Election Day. The outcome of 63 separate elections will determine the fate of the Senate majority,” Greenberg said. “Not surprisingly, New York City voters overwhelmingly want a Democratic Senate, but so too do a majority of downstate suburbanites and a small plurality of upstaters.”

Cuomo Honeymoon Approaching Two Years

Cuomo has a 67-24 percent favorability rating (down slightly from 71-24 percent in August) and a 58-40 percent job performance rating (little changed from 60-40 percent in August).

“While Cuomo’s 67 percent favorability is the lowest – by a whole point – it’s been since he’s been Governor, Cuomo continues to receive strong favorability and job performance grades from not only Democrats, but also from independents and even Republicans,” Greenberg said.

This Siena College Poll was conducted October 22-24, 2012 by telephone calls to 750 likely New York State registered voters. It has a margin of error of  $\pm 3.6$  percentage points. Data was statistically adjusted by age, party, historic turnout and gender to ensure representativeness. Sampling was conducted via random digit dialing to landline and cell phones weighted to reflect known population patterns. The Siena College Research Institute, directed by Donald Levy, Ph.D., conducts political, economic, social and cultural research primarily in New York State. Poll Trend Notes: All surveys are of registered voters except for the polls of August and October 2012, October 2010, September and October 2008, and September and October 2006, which are polls of likely voters.

Trends reflect questions asked at least twice since the first Siena College Poll in February 2005.

Results listed here include all times questions have been asked since July 2011.

“Highest Ever” and “Lowest Ever” is provided at the bottom of each question.
