Siena College Poll:

Gov's Ratings Slip; Trails Lazio by 7 Points & Cuomo by 42 Points

Voters Think State Senate was Right to Remove Monserrate from Office

Gillibrand Keeps Big Lead Over Ford; Trails Pataki; Beats Blakeman, Zuckerman

Voters Support Wine in Grocery Stores; Oppose Soda Tax; A Majority of Voters Oppose Budget Cuts to Health Care or Education, Even if it Means Higher Taxes

Loudonville, NY. Governor David Paterson's favorability, job performance and electability ratings all slipped over the last month, as he now trails Attorney General Andrew Cuomo by 42 points in a potential Democratic gubernatorial primary and trails former Republican Representative Rick Lazio by seven points, according to a new Siena (College) Research Institute poll of registered voters. By a nearly three-to-two margin, voters think the State Senate was right to remove Democrat Hiram Monserrate from the Senate.

United States Senator Kirsten Gillibrand maintains a better than two-to-one lead over former Representative Harold Ford in a potential Democratic primary, and looking at potential general election Senate match-ups, she continues to trail former Governor George Pataki, but she has large leads over former Nassau County Legislator Bruce Blakeman and Daily News publisher Mort Zuckerman.

"After three months of seeing modest gains his favorability and job performance ratings, Governor Paterson has lost ground with voters over the last month," said Siena pollster Steven Greenberg. "The only good news for Paterson is that voters did not believe the rumors that had been swirling around Albany for weeks that a story would break forcing his resignation. Two-thirds of voters said they didn't believe the rumors, while only 22 percent of voter believed that the Governor may very well have acted inappropriately in office."

Currently, 35 percent of voters have a favorable view of Paterson, compared to 55 percent who have an unfavorable view (38-52 percent in January). Only 22 percent of voters think Paterson is doing an excellent or good job as Governor, compared to 76 percent who say only fair or poor (24-75 percent in January).

"David Paterson has done nothing to cut into the huge lead Andrew Cuomo enjoys in a potential Democratic primary. In fact, the lead has now expanded to 64 percent to 22 percent, including a nearly 20-point lead for Cuomo with African American voters," Greenberg said.

“Looking at the general election doesn’t provide much better news for Paterson. While Cuomo maintains a 37-point lead over Lazio, Paterson now trails Lazio by 46 percent to 39 percent, down from a dead even race last month. Among Democrats alone, Paterson only beats Lazio 56 percent to 31 percent, while Cuomo’s lead over Lazio among Democrats is 80 percent to 11 percent. While Paterson trails Lazio by more than 60 points among Republicans, Lazio’s lead over Cuomo among Republicans is only 54-36 percent,” Greenberg said.

2010 Gubernatorial Horse Race Questions
Date	Paterson v. Lazio		Cuomo v. Lazio
	Paterson	Lazio	Cuomo	Lazio
Feb. 22, 2010	39%	46%	63%	26%
Jan. 18, 2010	42%	42%	66%	24%
Dec. 14, 2009	42%	40%	68%	22%
Aug. 24, 2009	38%	37%	66%	16%

“While a majority of voters – including Democrats by a two-to-one margin – continue to want Cuomo to run for governor rather than re-election as attorney general, voters are moving in the direction of saying that Cuomo has to declare now what he’s running for,” Greenberg said. “By a margin of 43-41 percent, voters say Cuomo has time to wait before declaring but that is down from 49-37 percent last month and 52-33 percent in November.

“And for all the talk by some pundits about the need for an outsider to take on Albany, voters don’t agree. More than half of voters – 53 percent – would prefer the governor elected this year be someone with a lot of experience in Albany, compared to 36 percent who would prefer an Albany outsider,” Greenberg said. “A majority of Democrats and downstaters prefer a candidate with Albany experience, as do a plurality of independent voters and upstaters. A plurality of Republicans, however, would prefer an Albany outsider.”

Voters Say State Senate was Right to Remove Monserrate from Office

“Fifty-eight percent of voters think the Senate was right to remove Monserrate from office, compared to 40 percent who said senators should have left it up to the voters of his district,” Greenberg said. “Monserrate’s ouster was supported by a majority of Democrats and independents and an overwhelming majority of Republicans, as well as by a nearly equal number of self described liberals and conservatives.

“Only African American voters – who have as an unfavorable view of Monserrate as do other voters – believe that voters and not Senators should have decided the issue. Only five percent of voters have a favorable view of Monserrate, compared to 47 percent who have an unfavorable view,” Greenberg said.

Gillibrand: Small Gain in Favorability; Leads Ford Big; Trails Pataki; Beats Blakeman, Zuckerman

“Gillibrand is now viewed favorably by 34 percent of voters and unfavorably by 28 percent, up from a 30-32 percent unfavorable rating last month,” Greenberg said. “Ford, who remains unknown to more than half of voters, continues to significantly trail Gillibrand in a potential Democratic primary, with Gillibrand having the support of 42 percent of Democrats, compared to 16 percent for Ford, and four percent for Jonathan Tasini. Last month, Gillibrand’s lead over Ford was 41 percent to 17 percent.”

“In potential November match-ups, Gillibrand sliced her deficit against Pataki from thirteen points to six points,” Greenberg said. “Ford closed his deficit against Pataki to 14 points, down from 22 points. Gillibrand maintains a two-to-one lead over Blakeman and Ford beats Blakeman by 18 points. If publisher and political novice Mort Zuckerman enters the race as a Republican, similar to the way another wealthy, longtime Democrat became Mayor of New York City, he starts with low name recognition, a 20-point deficit against Gillibrand and a 14-point deficit against Ford.”

Voters Support Selling Wine in Grocery Stores and Oppose the Proposed Soda Tax

“By a 58-39 percent majority, voters support allowing New York grocery stores to sell wine. It is supported by Democrats, Republicans and independents, liberals, conservatives and moderates, and by voters upstate and downstate. Selling wine in grocery stores is supported by virtually every demographic group, with the exception of African Americans, Latinos and older voters, who are all evenly divided,” Greenberg said.

“Voters are opposed to the Governor’s proposed tax on soda and other sugared beverages by a margin of 59 percent to 38 percent,” Greenberg said. “While Democrats and New York City voters are closely divided on this issue, it is overwhelmingly opposed by Republican, independents, downstate suburbanites and upstaters.”

Voters to Legislature: Oppose Education and Health Care Spending Cuts, Even if it Means Higher Taxes

“Nearly three-in-five voters, including a plurality of Republicans and conservatives, say the Legislature should not cut spending to either health care or education, even if it means raising taxes. Voters were told that the Governor was attempting to close an $8 billion deficit and that health care and education are the two largest parts of the state budget,” Greenberg said. “Still, only 20 percent of voters say both should be cut and another 16 percent said one but not the other should be cut.”

Voter Priorities: Reducing State Spending; Lowering State Taxes; Increasing Funding for Schools

“When asked to choose the top two priorities – from a list of six – they want to see state government focus on for the rest of this year, voters ranked reducing state spending, lowering state taxes and increasing funding for schools as the top three, outpacing reforming state government ethics, fixing roads and bridges, and passing same sex marriage legislation,” Greenberg said. “Democrats put education on the top of their agenda, followed by spending. Republicans have a tie for the top spot between taxes and spending, and independents put spending on top, followed closely by taxes.”

Top Two Priorities for State Government to Focus on for the Rest of 2010
Issue	NYS Voters		Democrats		Republicans		Independents
	Top Priority	Top Two Priorities	Top Priority	Top Two Priorities	Top Priority	Top Two Priorities	Top Priority	Top Two Priorities
Reducing state spending	24%	47%	17%	39%	24%	51%	30%	49%
Lowering state taxes	19%	41%	16%	31%	25%	51%	19%	48%
Increasing funding for schools	24%	38%	33%	53%	16%	25%	15%	24%

Passing same sex marriage legislation	4%	9%	6%	12%	1%	4%	1%	7%

“Hey, nobody said voters are always consistent. On one hand voters tell Siena that they don’t want budget cuts in education or health care, even if it means an increase in taxes. At the same time, the same voters rank reducing state spending and lowering state taxes as their top two priorities for 2010,” Greenberg said. “Just another example that it’s far easier to report on what voters are thinking than it is to make policy based on what the voters are thinking.”

Still Favorable In Blue New York, Obama Hits Highest Ever Unfavorable Rating

“With a 61-35 percent favorability rating, President Obama has hit the highest unfavorable rating New York voters have ever given him,” Greenberg said. “While 80 percent of Democrats still view Obama favorably, 69 percent of Republicans now view him unfavorably. Independents are still favorable, 57-40 percent.”

Schumer Favorability Remains Strong; “Re-elect” Number Dips, Remains Above 50 Percent

“New York’s senior United States Senator, Chuck Schumer, remains strong with New York voters, as 61 percent view him favorably and 29 percent unfavorably, virtually unchanged from 60-28 percent in December,” Greenberg said. “Currently, 55 percent are prepared to re-elect him, while 36 percent prefer ‘someone else,’ down from 60-32 percent in November.”

Voters View on Direction of State Approaches Record Low

“Only 25 percent of voters think New York is headed on the right track, compared to 63 percent who say the state is headed in the wrong direction,” Greenberg said. “This is down from 27-61 percent last month, and approaches the all-time record worst reading of 23-64 percent in July 2009.”

This SRI survey was conducted February 14-18, 2010 by telephone calls to 805 New York State registered voters. It has a margin of error of ± 3.5 percentage points. Data was statistically adjusted by age, party and gender to ensure representativeness. Sampling was conducted via random digit dialing weighted to reflect known population patterns. Poll Trend Notes: Trends reflect questions asked at least twice since the first Siena College Poll in February 2005. Results listed here include all times questions have been asked since January 2009.

“Highest Ever” and “Lowest Ever” is provided at the bottom of each question.

All surveys are of registered voters except for the polls of September and October 2008 and September and October 2006, which are polls of likely voters.
