The New York Times Upshot/Siena College Poll – 9/24/18

Likely voters in this district north of Los Angeles lean towards preferring Democrats rather than Republicans controlling the House of Representatives next year, 49-46 percent. Voters give President Trump a nine-point negative job approval rating with 43 percent approving the job he is doing and 52 percent disapproving and by 54-41 percent they oppose an immigration reform bill that would reduce legal immigration and provide funds for a wall along the U.S.-Mexican border.

This New York Times Upshot/Siena College Poll is part of an ongoing project polling pivotal Congressional races across the country. The data is published live on <https://www.nytimes.com/section/upshot>. This press release highlights the key findings and provides access in the cross-tabulations to the entire survey as well as how demographic groups answered each question.

This New York Times Upshot/Siena College CA 25 survey was conducted September 17-19, 2018 by telephone calls in English and Spanish to 500 CA 25 voters. This poll has a margin of error of ± 5.0 percentage points. Calls were made to a stratified weighted sample of voters from the L-2 Voter list via both land and cell phones. A likely-to-vote probability was computed for each respondent based on their stated likelihood to vote as well as by virtue of the imputation of a turnout probability score based on past voting behavior. This combined probability to vote score was applied as a weight along with a weight that considered party, age, race/ethnicity, education, region within the district and gender.
