Q32. Earlier this month, the State Legislature passed a series of bills - signed into law by Governor Cuomo - aimed at improving policing in New York. Among the new laws are a ban on chokeholds by police officers, making disciplinary actions taken against police officers public, and having a special unit in the State Attorney General's Office to investigate and prosecute when a civilian is killed by a police officer. Overall, do you think these new laws will be good for New York or bad for New York?
