

SIENA COLLEGE RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Dear Siena Saints,

Welcome to the Annual Community Research & Development Presentation on April 30th, 2024, at 515 Loudon Rd, Loudonville NY 12211

On behalf of my class, we are delighted to formally invite the Siena Community to attend a presentation for our Community Research & Development course. This presentation marks the culmination of our semester's work and promises to offer valuable insights into the topics covered throughout the course. In this course, we analyzed survey responses from participants in New York based on public opinion on the environment and the unique findings amongst various demographics and cultural backgrounds and how they affect these opinions.

The details of the presentation are as follows:

Event: COMD-210 Class Presentation

Date: April 30, 2024

Time: 12:30 - 1:15

Venue: Molinari Room located in SSU 239

The presentation will encompass various topics related to the environmental issues we as a society face today, including public opinion, and how demographics affect public opinion. Our class has dedicated considerable time and effort to researching and preparing for this event, and we are confident that the presentation will be both informative and engaging. We welcome your attendance and feedback as we present our semester's long work. Additionally, the insights and expertise of this subject will be invaluable in forming an understanding of how religion, ethnicity, political party, age, gender, and income level affect public opinion on environmental issues. Should you have any questions or require further information, please do not hesitate to contact me at tbrodbeck@siena.edu. We look forward to sharing the knowledge and insights gained throughout the semester.
